JETNET Featuring New Helicopter Brands at Helitech Portugal

UTICA, NY – JETNET LLC, the world's leading provider of corporate aviation information, is featuring its newly branded Helicopter database services, Helidex and Rotodex, at this year's Helitech Portugal 2010 trade show. In addition, JETNET will be showcasing several new and enhanced summary Views, metric specifications, and Evolution Mobile, the mobile version of its flagship Evolution product for smartphones. The helicopter services will also be available to live customers on the mobile platform. They'll be demonstrating the products to attendees of this year's Helitech Portugal 2010 at Airport Cascais in Estoril, from October 5th-7th in booth #612.

JETNET maintains the world's largest comprehensive civil helicopter database, with 125 turbine and piston rotary wing models and more than 30,000 total rotary wing airframes. Their fast, regularly updated services provide global listings of airframes for sale, trade or lease in summary Views for quick, convenient searches.

The Helidex product provides timely, accurate listings of some 2,000 airframes offered for sale on the global helicopter market. Rotodex gives subscribers comprehensive specification details on over 26,000 in-service turbine and piston airframes worldwide. This marks the first time JETNET has branded their research products specifically for helicopter markets and professionals.

Vincent Esposito, President of JETNET, says his firm collects the most reliable and timely intelligence, but is also providing even clearer choices to those in the helicopter market. "Our comprehensive rotary wing service stays current with the global market, and we present complex data in easy-to-read summaries. We want to make the information as accessible as possible for our helicopter clients," he said. "These improvements help them know even more, and stay ahead of their competition in today's demanding marketplace."

The new one-page Model Market List View summary captures data of particular interest to sales professionals, including aircraft for sale for selected makes and models, price/status, brokers, key features, times, and much more.

A new feature also improves international compatibility by providing a metric units option in the Performance Specification and Operating Cost modules. International subscribers and those who work with clients globally will experience seamless unit translations and be able to display relevant records without extra conversion time and the attendant possibility for errors.

JETNET is most excited about the debut of their new Evolution Mobile service. Available exclusively to subscribers of their premium Helidex service with LIVE updates, the Mobile application offers users a mobile screen-sized version of Helidex, and runs on most popular smartphones with web and SMS text ability. Through this new feature, Helidex LIVE subscribers can use their phones to remotely access many of the same menus, View screens and aircraft details available on their desktop Helidex service. Subscribers can also choose to receive customizable Text Messages to immediately alert them of developments on specific aircraft or market segments. The mobile app for Helidex is currently available for the iPhone, Droid and Blackberry.
